The Victim & Suspects

THE VICTIM

VICTIM

Cornelius Quillfeather

RELATIONSHIP Owner of the shop; uncle of Imogen
OCCUPATION Rare book dealer, Quillfeather & Co.
AGE 72

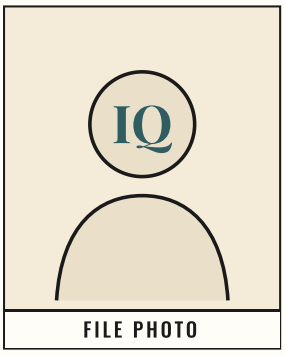

Kind, exacting and stubborn. Knew every book on Case R by heart and climbed the rolling ladder like a man half his age.

LAST KNOWN MOVEMENTS

Gave a free talk, "Caring for Old Books," at Little Wexham Library on Thursday at 6 pm. Seen at the shop's front door at about 7:05 pm. Found in the Rare Book Room on Friday at 8:55 am.

DETECTIVE'S NOTES _____

SUSPECT 1

FILE PHOTO

Imogen Quillfeather

RELATIONSHIP Niece of the victim; his partner in the shop
OCCUPATION Partner, Quillfeather & Co.; lives in Market Harrow
AGE 38

Brisk and modern. Thinks the shop would do better as part of a chain, and says so.

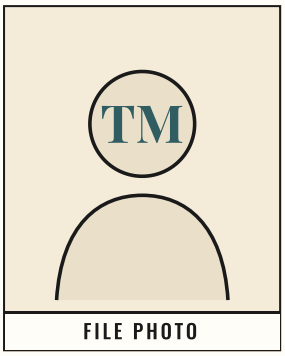

THURSDAY EVENING, IN THEIR OWN WORDS

"Priya and I counted the till, and we all left together at quarter to six. I caught the 5:50 bus to Market Harrow and went straight to a meeting with Pageturner Books. It ran until after eight. Then I walked home."

DETECTIVE'S NOTES _____

Suspect Profiles

SUSPECT 2

FILE PHOTO

Theo Marchetti

RELATIONSHIP Rival bookseller; lost the Marsh Clock to the victim at auction

OCCUPATION Owner, Marchetti Books, Market Lane

AGE 51

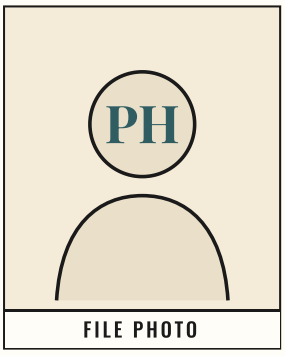

Charming at auctions, less charming when he loses one. Still sore about the Marsh Clock.

THURSDAY EVENING, IN THEIR OWN WORDS

"I ran my shop's book club from half past five until seven. Walking home along the High Street, I saw Cornelius and his assistant at his door. I didn't go over."

DETECTIVE'S NOTES _____

SUSPECT 3

FILE PHOTO

Priya Halloran

RELATIONSHIP Employee of the victim for three years; found him on Friday

OCCUPATION Shop assistant, Quillfeather & Co.

AGE 26

Careful, quiet and good with customers. Questioned by her employer this week about money in the till.

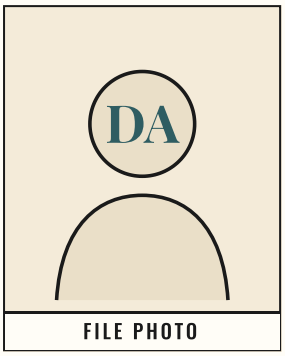

THURSDAY EVENING, IN THEIR OWN WORDS

"After closing I went with Mr. Quillfeather to his library talk and ran his slides. We walked back together and said good night at the shop door at about five past seven."

DETECTIVE'S NOTES _____

Suspect Profiles

SUSPECT 4

FILE PHOTO

Desmond Achterberg

RELATIONSHIP Customer; offered to buy the Marsh Clock and was refused

OCCUPATION Retired engineer and book collector

AGE 64

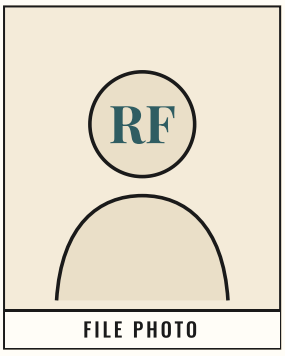

Patient, polite and very rich. Wants the Marsh Clock more than anything else on Case R.

THURSDAY EVENING, IN THEIR OWN WORDS

"I visited the shop in the afternoon, then went to the library early to get a good seat for the talk. I stayed chatting afterward until about quarter past seven."

DETECTIVE'S NOTES _____

SUSPECT 5

FILE PHOTO

Rosalind Fenwick

RELATIONSHIP Repairs and rebinds books for the shop; holds a set of shop keys

OCCUPATION Book restorer and binder, Fenwick Bindery, Market Harrow

AGE 47

Gifted, softly spoken and trusted with the shop's best books. Rebound the Marsh Clock in September.

THURSDAY EVENING, IN THEIR OWN WORDS

"I dropped off a repaired atlas at half past four and caught the 4:50 bus home from the High Street stop. I worked alone in my workshop all evening."

DETECTIVE'S NOTES _____